AT THE THEATRES.

Francis Wilson and "The Lion Tamer."

Francis Wilson's long season at the Broadway Theatre, New York, is drawing to an end, and in a little while he and his comic-opera company will bid farewell to New York for a whole year. Manager Al Hayman of San Francisco has consummated an engagement for Mr. Wilson and his complete "Lion Tamer" company, with all the bulky scenery, circus-wagons, houses, ponies, etc., to make a quick tour across the continent, and appear before the Californians for a long run beginning early in May, and next season Wilson will appear in this remarkably successful opera in only a few of the leading cities outside of New York. The one hundredth performance of the "Lion Tamer" will take place in the week of April 4, and the management announce that they are having prepared very unique little mementoes, designed especially to gratify the children, which they intend to distribute to each lady and child attending any one of the performances in that week. The new song, "Poor Tonio," which made such a pronounced hit when it was introduced a few nights ago, wins four or five encores every evening, and the dance by Mr. Wilson, Miss Moore, Miss Lyford, and the chorus which accompanies it is said to be one of the most graceful, rhythmic and effective seen since the wonderfully popular Cachucha in "The Gondoliers."

At Miner's Newark Theatre.

Harry Lacy is coming to Miner's Newark Theatre next week in his new play, "Jack Royal of the Ninety-second," introducing the "Still Alarm" horses, a forge scene and a fire department at work.

Eva Ray Hamilton at Waldmann's.

Fred. Waldmann offers as an attraction next week the Howard Big Burlesque Company, introducing Mrs. Eva Ray Hamilton, who will positively appear at every performance, including the usual matinees.

Overheard on Broad Street.

Two little girls on their way to the Post-office Thursday afternoon looked curiously through the windows of the Y. M. C. A. reading-room.

"I don't see anything in there that looks like a fair, do you?" said the younger child.

"Of course not," answered the other, "it isn't going to be until next Wednesday, and you don't suppose any one would leave candy and peanuts around where those boys are, do you?"

"Well, won't it be a funny fair without any grown-up things; I wonder what they will have to sell for ten cents."

"Oh, my! sister's a King's Daughter, and she's made some lovely little tiny—oh, my, she said she would give me a pint of peanuts if I didn't tell before the fair, so I guess I won't. Come along."

Mr. Gwinnett Injured.

John M. Gwinnett, superintendent of Hayden's rolling mill, on Bloomfield Avenue, was severely injured a few days ago while on his way to his home in Newark. When near Central Avenue the carriage was upset, throwing Mr. Gwinnett to the ground. He was taken home by friends.

Committed to the Asylum.

Edwin J. Beames of No. 67 Willow Street was arrested by Officer Harvey on Monday night, charged by his wife, Hatice L. Beames, with lunacy and of being unfit to be at large. Beames was taken before Justice Post. The Justice sent for Dr. W. H. White, who examined Beames, but who was not satisfied as to his condition. Beames was paroled in the custody of Officer Harvey, and a second examination was made on Tuesday night. Dr. White suggested that as Dr. Van Giesen was Beames' family physician he be sent for, which was done.

The two physicians, after a lengthy examination, decided to send Beames to the County Insane Asylum for examination there as to his sanity.

Mrs. Beames stated to the Justice that her husband would come home and threaten her.

Beames is well known in town, and for the past six months has conducted a huck business at the D. L. & W. R. depot.

At the asylum another examination was made by the physicians in attendance, and they stated that Beames was suffering from softening of the brain and spinal meningitis, and in all probability would not live long.

His horses are being cared for by Health Inspector Corby. The Inspector found the animals in a half-starved condition.

Did Not Allow Mr. Fullman to Proceed.

Fred. Fullman, who was awarded the contract for sidewalk grading last spring, claims that he has been unjustly treated. Mr. Fullman has been before the Committee a number of times in relation to the matter. He was present again on Monday night with a copy of his contract and other documents bearing on the subject. He requested that the contract be read, but no one of the Committee would read it. He then proceeded to read the letters. The Chairman interrupted him and told him that he had taken up a great deal of time at previous meetings and that none of the Committee were at all interested in his letters. Mr. Fullman was about to go on with his reading when the Chairman told him that if he did not stop he would order him removed from the room. Mr. Fullman gathered up his papers and took his seat among the spectators.

Charles H. Spurgeon, the celebrated London preacher lately deceased, was the subject of the Rev. Elbert Clement's discourse in the Watseking M. E. Church last Sunday evening. Among the many interesting things Mr. Clement said about Mr. Spurgeon was one in particular to the effect that Mr. Spurgeon was a true-blue Calvinist and was one of the very few Protestant ministers who had the courage to preach pure Calvinism from his pulpit. Mr. Clement's congregation was not Calvinistic.
